WALTER BROWN

NEW YORK AND VIRGINIA

STILL IN THE DEMOCRATIC FOLD

Hill Elected by a Handsome Majority in the Empire State, While Fitz Lee Overwhelms Mahone and His Hybrid Myrmidons in the Old Dominion.

LET THE TRUMPET SOUND:

For Besides All This the Democrats Make Large Gains in Connecticut and Hold Their Own With the Minority in Massachusetts and Other Places.

What the Papers Will Say.
THE SUN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3, 1:30 a.m.—The Sun will say the entire Democratic city ticket in Brooklyn, including Whitney, for mayor, is elected.

LATER.

2:30 a.m.—The Sun bulletin says Hill carries Kings county by about 11,000 majority, and is certainly elected by more than 15,000 majority.

THE TRIBUNE.

The Tribune bulletins say half the districts heard from in Brooklyn indicate that Hill's majority will be 13,000.

THE WORLD.

A bulletin to the World says if the Democratic gain in the districts yet to hear from is equal to that already shown in 210 districts reported, then Hill's majority will reach 28,000 in the entire State.

New York City Complete.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—[2:30 a.m.]—The vote of New York City complete gives: Davenport, 73,443; Hill, 123,714; Carr, 76,880; Jones, 121,290. Hill's majority over Davenport is 48,268; Jones' over Carr, 44,419.

An Estimate.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—[2:30 a.m.]—The New York city Press bureau estimates that Hill will leave New York city and Kings county with a majority of 22,750.

The Progress and the Comparison of the Vote.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The weather was cool and clear in the eastern portion of the State, while throughout the Mohawk valley and at points further north snow storms prevailed, masking the roads heavy and disagreeable, and causing a much lighter vote than would otherwise have been cast. Both parties this morning seemed confident of victory, the Democrats claiming that Hill will be elected by 30,000 majority. The Republicans, while a little more modest, were fully as positive, and, while they gave no figures, claimed that Davenport's election was assured.
